Where Your Passion Becomes Purpose

Our Work at Trees For Tomorrow

Since 1944, Trees For Tomorrow has been a leader in environmental education, serving thousands of students, teachers, and community members each year from our campus in Eagle River, WI. Through immersive multi-day overnight outdoor programs for K-12, outreach and community events, we inspire curiosity, foster connections, and grow the next generation of natural resource stewards.

Our nature-based programs place people in direct contact with the natural resources that support human needs, and provide the knowledge and skills that lead to responsible lifestyle choices. A Trees For Tomorrow Student Outdoor Learning Experience (SOLE) influences the next industry workforce, inspires informed participation in policy-making and promotes stewardship of natural resources for multi-use by future generations.

With Trees For Tomorrow, every action helps connect people to nature and inspire tomorrow's stewards.

Our mission is the heart of everything we do at Trees For Tomorrow. It's the promise that every program, every hike, and every classroom experience is rooted in teaching the value of nature and sustainability.

Trees For Tomorrow promotes sustainable natural resources management through transformative, real-life educational experiences.

Our vision is the future we're striving toward—one where the seeds of learning we plant today grow into a generation that is committed to sustainability of our natural world.

Trees For Tomorrow envisions a future where every individual is inspired and empowered to be stewards of our natural world.
